MANAGING DIRECTOR

Liz's passion and expertise lies in developing and promoting brands that drive business development and inspire customer loyalty. As a Managing Director at ERES, Liz's goal is to streamline and implement business/business development processes to further enable ERES to deliver world class service to its clients.

Liz formerly served as the Managing Director of Marketing for ERES. In this role, Liz oversaw all marketing activities including brand expression, marketplace positioning, key marketing and business development investments and corporate responsibility activities. Liz also focused on ensuring that ERES client properties and projects received maximum exposure within the energy industry and beyond.

Prior to joining ERES, Liz was a key member of the marketing and sales team at PwC. In her most recent role, Liz led all strategic marketing and communications, practice development, public relations, corporate responsibility, alumni relations, and advertising efforts for PwC's Rockies market. She oversaw marketing and business development efforts related to key industries including energy, cleantech, construction, and healthcare.

Liz's roots are in the public relations field. She has consulted with businesses, individuals and not-for-profit clients to fine tune their brand, image, messaging and approach to drive positive outcomes with consumers, the community and the media.

Liz resides in Golden, CO with her husband, Tom, and their three children.
